

Consumer Report To The FTC

The FTC cannot resolve individual complaints, but we can provide information about next steps to take. We share your report with local, state, federal, and foreign law enforcement partners. Your report might be used to investigate cases in a legal proceeding. Please read our Privacy Policy to learn how we protect your personal information, and when we share it outside the FTC.

Your Next Steps

If you paid a scammer with a credit or debit card:

- File a dispute (also called a “chargeback”) with your credit or debit card company.
 - Online: Log onto your credit or debit card company's website and go through the company's dispute process.
 - By phone: Call the phone number on the back of your card and tell them why you're filing a dispute.
- Follow up with a letter to your credit or debit card company. To protect any rights you may have, follow up in writing by sending a letter to the address listed for billing disputes or errors. Use our sample letter.
- Save your records. Keep any letters, notes, or emails related to the scam - they could help prove you're entitled to a refund if the credit or debit card company has any questions.
- Find out your rights at ftc.gov/credit.

General Advice:

- You can find tips and learn more about bad business practices and scams at consumer.ftc.gov.
- You also can file a report with your state attorney general.

What Happens Next

- Your report will help us in our efforts to protect all consumers. Thank You!
- We can't resolve your individual report, but we use reports to investigate and bring cases against fraud, scams, and bad business practices.
- We share your report with our law enforcement partners who also use reports to investigate and bring cases against fraud, scams, and bad business practices.
- We use reports to spot trends, educate the public, and provide data about what is happening in your community. You can check out what is going on in your state and metro area by visiting ftc.gov/exploredata.
- Investigations and cases do take time, but when we bring cases, we try to get money back for people. Check out ftc.gov/refunds to see recent FTC cases that resulted in refunds.
